VIPR Enlistment—Kim Magee, Kelly McGinnis and Dorothy Gaston of the Emergency Preparedness project shared information on efforts to enlist and train volunteers for disaster preparedness. They discussed changes in the concept of preparedness that has developed since 1999, noting that public health emergency preparedness goes beyond traditional public health efforts in disease control. June Program
“Know Your Numbers” Addresses All Ages with New Presentation

Ann Sansing, standing left, and Mary Helen Conner, standing right, lead members in another discussion working toward completion of the “Know Your Numbers” presentation for the younger set. The program has great potential for use in schools and organizations throughout the state.

Missy Goodman, who with treasurer Sandra Shelson, has worked on the MCIC documentation that will lead the organization to its 501c3 status, is shown delivering some of the paperwork to Mary Helen Conner, chair.

MCIC: Seeking 501(c)(3) Status

MCIC may soon see a major change as a committee works toward the longtime goal of the organization, a 501(c)(3) status. Sandra Shelson and Missy Goodman are co-chairs of this effort and will share details with membership at the Sept. 23 general meeting.

The Mississippi Rural Health Association (MRHA) has aided MCIC through serving as the fiscal agent for the organization. “We realize the need to continue MCIC growth, and being accorded the 501(c)(3) status will greatly enhance our opportunities for expansion,” said Mary Helen Conner, chairman.

ADA Youth Retreat Is Sept. 12 in Canton

The American Diabetes Association Youth Retreat has been sponsored again this year, with other supporters of the ADA event including Walmart Foundation, St. Dominic Hospital, Sanofi Aventis, and Healthy Mississippi.

The Sept. 12 retreat was set for activities such as an obstacle course, arts and crafts, sack races, water games and a family dance-off, with ages 6 through 17 participating during the day-long event.

The camp efforts by ADA serve more than 10,000 children with Type 1 and Type 2 diabetes each year. The mission is to prevent and cure diabetes and to improve the lives of those affected by the disease. The cost is a $20 registration fee.

Sharing information about efforts in disaster preparedness organization and seeking to expand the Volunteers in Preparedness Registry (VIPR) program brought three members of the Office of Emergency Planning and Response (OEPR), Mississippi State Department of Health, to MCIC in June to share details of the program. Some 12,000 persons are needed in order to be ready should any disasters occur in the state.

The VIPR database houses contact and credential information on health care professionals who have registered in advance to aid in the event of a disaster.

The MSDH Office of Emergency Planning and Response sponsored the June 17 meeting and explained how the office provides technical assistance to local jurisdictions when planning, training and responding to emergencies that have the potential to affect public health. Presenting the public health emergency preparedness overview and the at-risk program awareness were the OEPR team of Dorothy Gaston, Emergency Preparedness training director for the at-risk project; Kim Abrams Magee, Emergency Preparedness grant coordinator; and Kelly McGinnis, District V planner, OEPR.

The focus on Volunteers in Disaster and Psychological First Aid Training sessions held in early summer included the role of volunteers in emergency response; self care for volunteers; volunteers’ assistance in points of distribution; incident command structure; settings for psychological first aid; core actions for psychological first aid; intervention strategies for psychological first aid.

An all-hazards approach for public health emergencies covers the possibilities of bioterrorism, disease outbreaks, hazardous material events, floods, hurricanes, tornadoes and power outages.

At-risk populations include children, seniors, pregnant women, individuals in institutionalized settings, diverse cultures, and persons with limited English-speaking proficiency, transportation limitations, chronic medical disorders, and pharmacological dependencies. At risk also includes anyone who has been through any kind of catastrophic public health event where his or her well being was threatened or affected.

The three-year at-risk project is year-one, program development, followed by year two’s training and education/plan implementation. Year three follows with development of coalitions in the public health districts.
